Our core program areas center on three pillars, which are—

Health: (Programs launched in August 2010)

Our definition of health is broad. We believe that health is more than just physical well-being. It encompasses an individual's physical, mental, social/behavior, fiscal, and spiritual wellness. Thus, our program offerings reflect this perspective and especially target K-16 students, senior citizens, and new and expectant mothers.

Since the launch of our signature event, “Celebrating a Healthier Detroit” Expo, on August 28, 2010, our initiatives have focused on health issues relevant to metro Detroit. The Expo serves as our major program. Its purpose is to reduce health disparities in the Detroit area by bringing together the greater health and wellness communities and showcasing programs that are free or low cost, especially for metro Detroit residents who are uninsured and underinsured.

Our Health Impact

To improve the health of metro Detroiters by eliminating obesity and diet-related diseases in youth age 0-18 and their families, and bridge the “gap in information” that exists by providing quality education, awareness, and access to relevant resources that promote healthy living.

Entrepreneurship: (Programs scheduled to launch fall 2021)

Small businesses fuel job growth and are key to rebuilding our great city. Entrepreneurs are especially integral to this equation. We believe that Metro Detroit is made up of creative and talented individuals. Future programs are geared toward grades 6 through college and will develop and harness this rich talent by providing access to specialized knowledge, skills, and support systems necessary to develop future entrepreneurs and business leaders. Important to this pillar is asset building, which begins with homeownership. Thus, creating educational programs that create pathways to affordable homeownership is a priority.

Our Economic Development Impact

To revitalize and strengthen Detroit communities by empowering Detroiters, targeting ages 12-30 and their families, through quality education, awareness, and relevant resources in the critical need areas of homeownership, micro and social enterprise, and financial literacy.

Environmental Responsibility: (Programs scheduled to launch fall 2023)

As global citizens, it is important to understand how individuals collectively impact the environment both positively and negatively. Our programs will engage K-12 students in STEAMM (science, technology, engineering, arts, medicine, and mathematics) programs, along with their parents and grandparents, to cultivate a respect for the environment, promote sustainable living and careers, and help develop an understanding of the connectivity between people, the land, air, and water.

Ensuring Equity in Education, Awareness, and Access
